League is Ready To Strike Italy

British Urge Five Drastic Sanctions to Force Mussolini to Stop War; Germany's Part is Discussed.

By INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE

Italy slowed up her military campaign in Ethiopia today, apparently casting an anxious eye on activities of the League of Nations at Geneva.

Although outwardly and ostensibly heedless of the League's plans, which include a program of sanctions against her, Italy under the surface was deeply concerned over the Geneva procedure, which already has made her an outcast among nations and which is aimed to check her plan of East African conquest.

May Vote Late Today

The league assembly was scheduled to meet late in the day to hear the speeches of 15 delegates on the sanctions issue, which may be voted upon afterward if there is time.

Italy protested to the League against Ethiopia's decision to expel the Italian minister from the country.

The British cabinet met in full session in London to approve the line of action to be followed at Geneva, and decided in view of the gravity of the crisis to summon parliament a week earlier than scheduled if events at Geneva should make it necessary.

Five stages of sanctions are envisioned by Britain:

- 1.—Curtailling of all loans and exchange facilities to Italy.
- 2.—Restriction of exports to Italy of implements of war, and raw products required for manufacture of arms, but which could also be used in other industries.
- 3.—Restriction of imports from Italy.
- 4.—Pressure on the civilian population, such as withholding of products like coffee, tea, and sugar, which would affect the morale of the population.
- 5.—Finally, a blockade by naval powers.

These sanctions, theoretically, should be applied equally by all nations, but it is expected that some countries, because of their geographical and military positions, may be certain modifications, and these may be granted. Switzerland, Austria, Hungary, and Yugoslavia may thus escape full application of embargoes, but Britain insists that other nations make the ban so tight that Italy must yield.

Discuss Germany

League delegates this morning unofficially discussed Germany's part in the application of sanctions. It was pointed out that Germany's two-year notice of withdrawal from the League does not officially expire until Oct. 21, and therefore the Reich is bound to adhere to the League's decision.

It was also stated that Germany cannot be considered out of the League until she pays her outstanding debt to the League of 5,000,000 gold francs.

DAVEY ASKS NEW AUTO LICENSE LAW

COLUMBUS, Oct. 9.—Gov. Martin L. Davey today asked the state legislature to enact another drivers' license law similar to the one passed by the regular session but vetoed by the governor.

In a message to the assembly, Davey claimed there were "certain defects in the other measure." He recommended a license fee of 50 cents, and suggested that the deputy registrars of motor vehicles be empowered to administer the oath to applicants at no additional cost.

Faces Jersey Justice

Court of Errors and Appeals Unanimous in Verdict Bruno Must Die.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 9.—Bruno Richard Hauptmann must die for the murder of baby Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., the New Jersey court of errors and appeals decreed today by an unanimous decision.

Solemnly the 13 black-robed justices of New Jersey's highest tribunal voted to sustain the guilty verdict returned at the "trial of the century" in Flemington on the night of Feb. 13.

In so doing the last chance for another trial for the country's strangest criminal was blocked in this state.

One Court Left

There is only one remaining avenue of appeal—to the Supreme Court of the United States.

The doomed man's lawyers promptly announced that this course will be taken.

In an air of grave quiet, and with only 40 persons in the courtroom, the justices went through their calendar in a routine manner, reading decisions in 70 cases before they came to Hauptmann's.

—No. 99—at 11:41 a. m.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—Bruno Richard Hauptmann has a one to 50 chance to win a hearing in the United States Supreme court, experienced court observers estimated today.

The high court will review his trial and conviction of the murder of the infant son of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh only if it appears that the court of New Jersey denied him the guarantees of the federal constitution.

The average annual levy outside the 10 mill limitation which must be made on the village duplicate of $637,810 throughout the life of the bonds, 25 years from and including 1937, to pay the interest and retire the bonds would be 1.59 mills, the county auditor reports.

ZENGE TRIAL OPENS TODAY; SANITY PLEA

Chicago Authorities Demand
Death Sentence for Young
Missourian, Jilted

CHICAGO, Oct. 9—A tragic romance begun in the old Mark Twain country along the Missouri shores of the Mississippi will be unfolded in the bleak reality of the courtroom today.

Mandeville N. Zenge, lean, lank, poor young carpenter of Canton, Mo., entangled in an involved web of evidence, will hear the state demand that he pay with his life for the mutilation murder of Dr. Walter J. Bauer, his successful love rival.

The state's star witness is pretty Louise Schaefer Bauer, courted by Zenge for ten years, and now asked to help send him to the electric chair.

Eloped With Bauer

The pretty nurse eloped with Dr. Bauer two days before she was to have married Zenge. But a few hours before her elopement Zenge is said to have visited her, shown her the wedding ring, made final plans for the ceremony.

Present to hear the unfolding of the strange and tragic romance will be her townsfolk from Kirksville; Zenge's friends and kin from Canton, and probably relatives of the victim from Cleveland, O.

Zenge, tall, taciturn and at times defiant, has successfully resisted all efforts of police to gain his confession that he abducted Dr. Bauer from an Ann Arbor, Mich., hotel, forced him to drive to Chicago where on the far south side Dr. Bauer was found fatally mutilated on the morning of July 31.

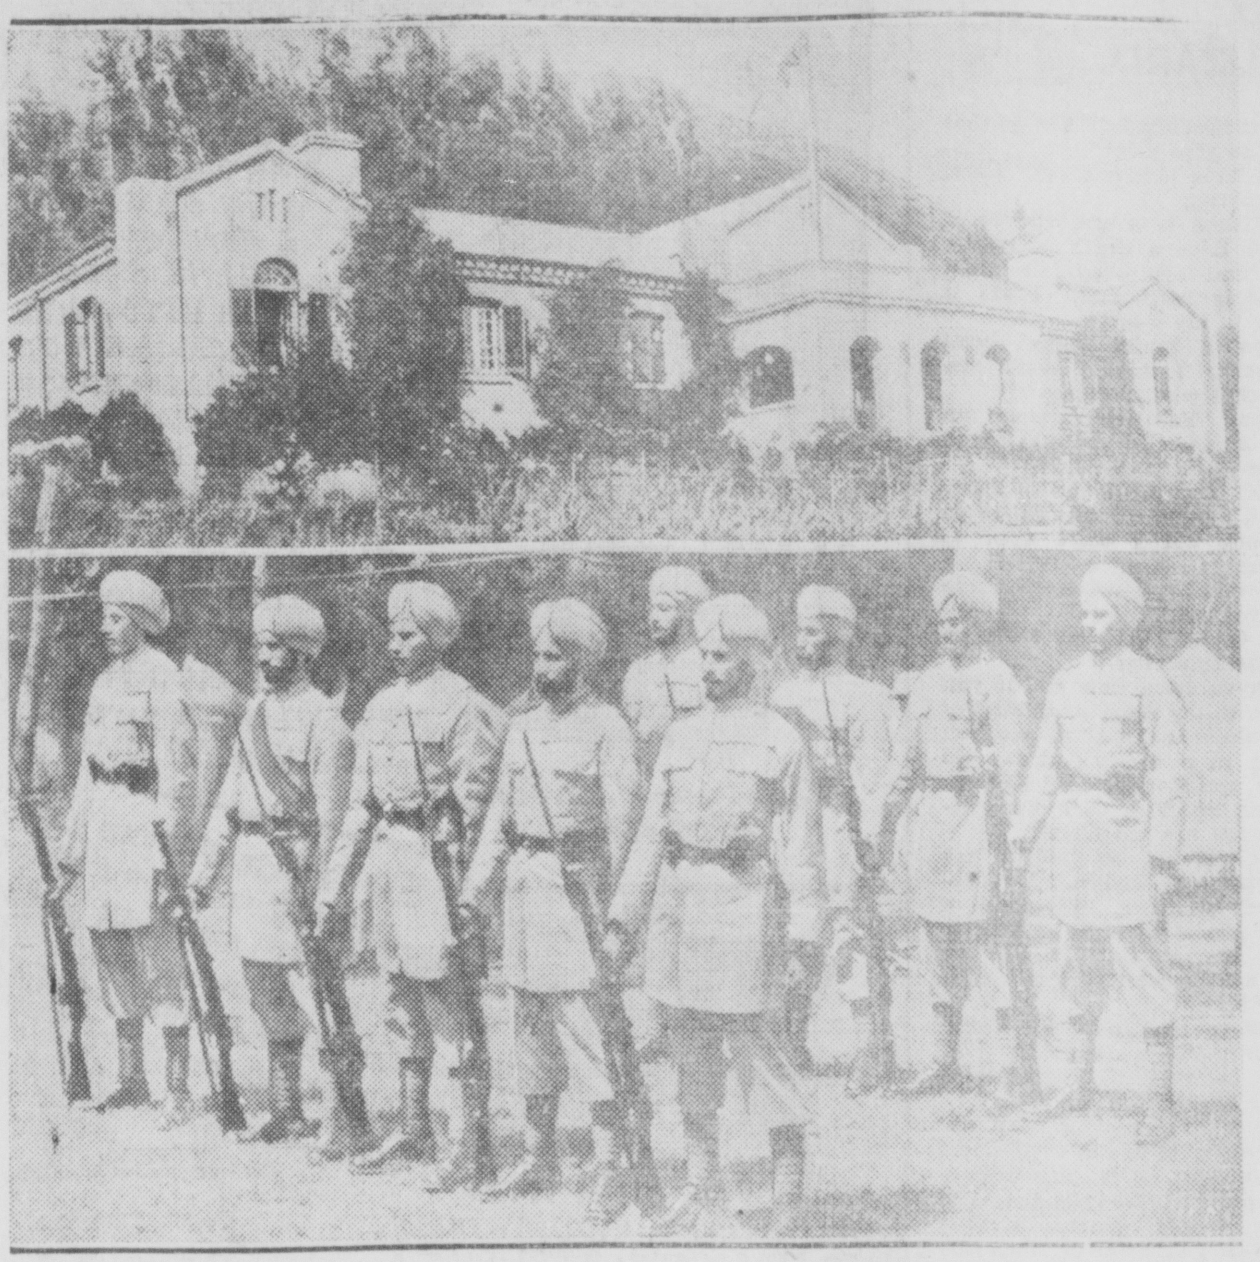

Dr. Bauer's marriage to Louise Schaefer took place in Kirksville, where he was employed as a teacher of chemistry, she as a nurse, July 14.

Taking Graduate Work

Immediately after the ceremony he returned to Ann Arbor where he was taking graduate work at the University of Michigan. His bride was to have visited him the week-end of his death.

Defense strategy is a moot question. But it is generally conceded the defense will be insanity, reviving the question of "irresistible impulse," or "temporary insanity."

Thus the defense would contend that Zenge, finding the girl lost to him, considered it his duty to hunt down the man who married here; that about this time his mind cracked under the strain, and that he was not responsible for the happenings of the next few days.

pleted, Harry Lane, chairman under Mr. Shaner reported at the meeting.

W. M. Reid, director, expects the largest pumpkin display in many years because of the favorable growing weather.

Seek More Fruit

Fruit exhibits may be slightly smaller this year, James Swearingen, chairman of that division, announced. He has sent premium lists to various sections hoping to obtain a larger exhibit. Although crippled by illness, Mr. Swearingen attended the meeting. Mr. Swearingen has missed only one show in the 32 years of its existence.

Fred E. Brunner predicted a large display of vegetables. He is chairman of that department.

All schools in the county will take part in the school exhibit this year to be held at the Armory in connection with the Junior fair, according to Carl D. Bennett, chairman.

Over 400 4-H club members will bring about 600 exhibits to the Junior fair based on exhibit lists filed with F. K. Blair, county extension agent.

C. D. Bradley, senior chairman of the Future Farmers of America, stated a great deal of interest was being shown in this project of the Junior fair and thanked the society for incorporating the fair projects as a part of the regular show.

Officers on Jr. Fair

Others who spoke in behalf of the Junior fair were Mrs. Ward Robinson, chairman of the Girl Scouts; Miss Olive Grimm, Walnut-twp, chairman of the home economics department, and William E. Bowers, Ashville, junior member of the Boy Scout department.

H. L. Steinhauer, director, introduced Mrs. E. S. Stephens, chairman of the fancy work division, and Mrs. James Moffitt, and George Rickard, assistant chairmen for the flower show.

Mrs. Stephens predicted a larger exhibit than last year when 435 entries were listed, 149 of which were quilts.

The flower show largely depends on the weather, Mrs. Moffitt reported, as the frosts have spoiled a large number of displays.

About 50 entries are expected this year in the beauty parade, according to C. G. Chaffin, chairman.

The first year seven took part, last year the entry list contained 23 names, and this year all organizations and schools have been asked to co-operate.

Earl L. Kibler, one of the chairmen of the industrial parade, one of the largest parades of the show, plans a finer parade than that of two years ago that won the praise of show directors and citizens. The Chamber of Commerce at present is constructing a beautiful float for this event to be held on Friday afternoon.

Others who attended the meeting in behalf of the parades were: Harold E. Baughman, assistant parade director; Miss Katherine Chaffin and Mrs. James Brown, chairmen of the baby parade; Miss Minnie Lyle, chairman of the character parade; Francis McGinnis and Stanley Melvin in charge of the pet parade; Senet M. Cryder, a chairman for the old vehicle parade, and Harry Briggs, horse parade director.

Proctor Baughman, director of the parades, introduced his assistants.

To Pitch Shoes

One of the new departments added to the celebration this year is the horse shoe pitching contest under the direction of Herbert Hammel.

Mr. Hammel announced the contests would be conducted on Pickaway-st near the Memorial hall. Three courts will be used and the players must live in Pickaway-co.

Lovers of fine saddle, harness and draft horses will have plenty of enjoyment at the horse shows this year, according to the report of Harry Briggs, service manager of the Farm Bureau and director of this division.

The department has been enlarged, many additional purses added and the entry list will be larger than ever before. Mr. Briggs announced he had received a number of reports of fine horses being brought to the show.

Mr. Briggs introduced Miss Dorothy Updyke, chairman of the pony division.

House floor leaders, announced they would meet Davey today to seek a compromise on the budget.

A few members of the house, who came here to dispose of the business remaining on the agenda, only to find that nothing will be done until next week to give the legislative leaders time to meet the governor in the budget arena, objected strenuously to further delay, but the house recessed again, nevertheless, at the call of Speaker J. Freer Bittinger.

The surprise action followed conference between Davey, Uible, Patterson, Gessman, Rep. Arthur Hamilton (H), of Warren-co; Rep. Julian H. Schweller (D), Fort Jennings, chairman of the finance committee, and officials of Ohio State university, who warned that the university would be unable to operate through the year unless at least part of the funds deleted from the budget is restored.

May Alter Stand

Unofficially, it was reported by legislative advisers of the governor that Davey at last is prepared to recede from his firm position against restoring any of the budget vetoes for the university.

He has traveled about the state considerably since his slash was made and his speeches have dwelt at length on the wisdom of trimming the university budget.

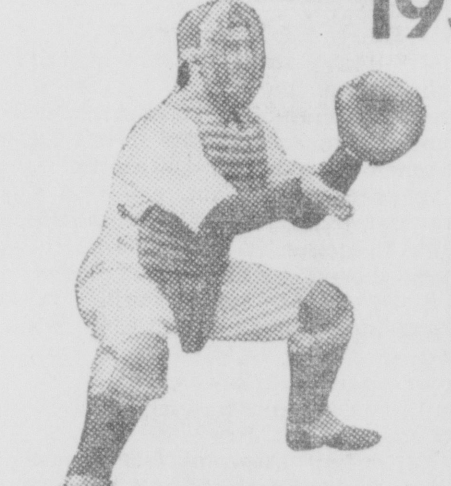

Republican members of the House, with several Democratic members, are determined to pass a new budget bill to give Ohio State and other institutions and departments money enough to provide for coal, stamps and other essentials.

Observers saw in today's move an indication that the governor, sensing defeat in the legislature, may seek to give in sufficiently to appease the university friends, yet still seek to safeguard the reductions in the budget that he has made.

BUILDING BOOM

NEAR the top of the list of activities concerned in the production of "durable goods" is the building industry. In normal times, construction operations provide an important field for the investment of capital and a major source of enjoyment. That is why statistics of building are carefully followed, and why the present improvement, slight though it may be by comparison to the boom years, is widely welcomed.

Contracts for building let in August in the area east of the Rocky mountains represent an expenditure of 168 million dollars, which is only about one-third of the monthly average for 1929, but involves an outlay half again as large as that for the corresponding month of last year. The relatively large increase in residential construction, noted generally throughout the country, is being attributed in considerable measure to the greater availability of mortgage funds. These include both money supplied by private sources and that offered in connection with the government's program to encourage building. The important fact here, however, is not the cause but the result, which has been to stimulate one of the principal industries in which the depression and unemployment have centered.

If the construction statistics are still unsatisfactory from the point of view of the country's normal economic condition, they yet mark a significant improvement.

THE ARMY MULE

IF MULES know everything, as veteran mule skinnners say they do, there must be triumphant braying in army corridors. For the news dispatches tell of the Italian forces' need of mules and of their arrival in Africa by the shipload. Evidently the sentimental farewells to the mule as a fundamental necessity in warfare have been premature.

Armies of the world have been mechanizing and motorizing at a rapid rate. Trucks carry the supplies and ammunition, tractors haul the guns. Cavalry is forsaking its horses for light tanks and armored cars. Swift motor transport is provided for the infantry. All very well for paved roads and smooth terrain, but battles are not fought in such a locale. If the country isn't rough in the beginning, shell fire and aerial bombardment soon make it so, and motors have their limitations.

So the army mule wags his long ears and swishes his shaven tail in comfortable knowledge that machines never will replace him completely.

No wonder middle-class people are best. They don't need vice to forget their misery or escape their boredom.

The fault isn't in Junior's behavior. An old man would seem dumb if you expected him to behave like a kid.

Studies Show How Long It Takes Foods to Digest

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
OUR KNOWLEDGE of the processes of digestion is comparatively new and is being added to constantly. The first inkling we had was when Beaumont, an American army surgeon, used his patient, Alexis St. Martin, who had received a shotgun wound exposing his stomach, through the abdominal wall, to direct inspection. Beaumont determined the rate of digestion of various kinds of food and changes that occurred in the process of digestion.

His experiments have been repeated in various ways, probably the most extensive studies being those of Rehfuss and Hawke. They removed food through the stomach tube at various stages and times of the digestive process in many hundred different people with every sort of food. Perhaps the most useful conclusion which they made was that there are two types of digesters—fast and slow—those who do it in about three hours and those who do it in about four, and whose schedule never changes in sickness or in health.

Report From England
Early this spring an interesting report came from England. Two X-ray specialists, Doctors W. C. D. Mills and K. J. L. Scott, studied the duration of digestion, as determined by the X-ray, on various kinds of foodstuffs. While X-ray studies of digestion have often been made, such extensive studies on single foods by the X-ray have never been done before.

It will be news to most people that milk takes longer than nearly any other food to digest. A pint of water will leave the stomach in 45 minutes, a pint of boiled milk in two hours. The usual time for digestion of an ordinary meal is three and one-half to four hours. Bodily upsets, as well as mental and emotional upsets, delay digestion.

The digestive time of various foods, as determined by Doctors Mills and Scott, is as follows:

	Hours
Cane sugar	1½
Banana, raw	1½
Gooseberries, stewed	1½
White bread	1½
Cream, thin	1½
Butter	1½
Eggs, soft boiled	2¼
Eggs, raw	2¼

Beef, boiled	2¼
Vegetable salad	2¼

The Romance Racket

MARIE BLIZARD

READ THIS FIRST:

Fun, parties, pretty clothes and beaux are things unattractive Carol Kennedy had never desired until she looked into the eyes of Dr. Owen Craig, fiancé of her cousin, Kathy Prentice. Kathy is marrying Owen for social prestige alone. When Carol, an orphan, comes into a vast fortune, she suddenly decides to leave her old home in Connecticut and seek freedom and happiness in New York. Isobel Bronson, an old school chum, helps Carol to buy proper clothes and takes her to her first cocktail party where she meets Gary Crandall, a playboy. Acting on a whim, he takes her to a beauty shop from which she emerges as an attractive girl. Knowing nothing of her wealth, he helps her to meet Manfred Morris, theatrical producer, who gives her a part in a Broadway show. But Carol does not care for the theater. At Isobel's wedding she sees Owen Craig again just as Gary proposes marriage. Kathy calls on Carol to say she is going abroad. And that she came to check upon her men—Owen and Gary. Morris sends Carol the script for a new play which she is reading when Owen drops in.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 21
WHEN CAROL raised her eyes to find Owen Craig towering above her, his dark face lit with a smile, the world stopped still and in its silence she could hear her own heart pounding.

"Of course, you may have it," she said. "Please come in. There's lots of ice and lots of coffee. . . . To himself she said, 'Stop talking like a goose. Pretend this is Gary. You can always talk to him easily.'"

When Owen came in and saw the play script perched upon the mantel he said: "Look here, it hadn't occurred to me that you might be busy, I'll run along."

"I'm not. I have nothing else"—there was a pause—"to do."

His face still held an expression of concern. She smiled at him with her eyes. "It's much too late for tea but if you'll stay for supper, I'd like to have you. That is. . . if you're not busy."

"I'll be here," he said eagerly. "It's been long since Kathy left but why don't I take you to dinner if you're sure you're not busy?"

"Because I think it would be more fun to stay here and there's plenty of food. I'll have it ready in no time. You'll find the river interesting and I think this unexpected coolness warrants a little hearty fire. If you'd like one, do you think you could manage it while I do things with food?"

"Can I?" he answered boyishly. "Why, for years, my family thought I was going to grow up to be a fireman before I took up doctoring. I'll have the whole place in a blaze in a jiffy."

"I hope the food won't do that," she answered laughing. "And when your fire is going, could you lend plates and linen in the corner cabinet? Silver in the top drawer; and everything we'll need for a cocktail right on the third shelf. . . . Ice out here. I think by that time I'll have our supper well tamed."

For a little while there were no words between them but the silence was intimate rather than strained. The savory smells of cooking mingled faintly with the scent of burning wood. Night dropped her curtain down and twilight filtered in the east windows laying soft veils on the cozy, home-like room. A pervading peace stole on Owen Craig and he was filled with a sense of quiet and contentment.

And when their supper was finished and Carol had come back to sit before the fire, they talked again. They talked of books they both loved and music they had heard.

"Mind if I smoke?" Owen had taken a pipe from his pocket. "Not a bit." Raising her slim figure to her knees, Carol struck a match and held it to his pipe. The firelight played on the lights of her hair and brought out the intoxicating soft perfume of it. Unguarded, Owen's appreciation flashed into his eyes as they met hers over the match. The match burned out and Carol turned away to look into the less dangerous flames in the hearth.

"This is by far the most pleasant . . . quietest evening and the most satisfying one I've spent in a long time."

"I feel that way too," she said quietly.

It was the low, insidious wall of a river boat whistle—that sound that brings nostalgia for places they have never seen to those who love its beckoning call—that gave words to the silence following.

"I love that sound," Carol said. "I have been many places and forgotten most of them because there was nothing to remember but sights and sounds and smells. Yet since I've been living here and heard those boats going out to distant places, I've felt a vast loneliness for some place I do not know. Some day I shall find it."

"I know what you mean. You may have to travel far to find it, little Carol, and when you do you'll find it is no further than your own heart."

"Oh, there must be something else," she said, speaking a thought aloud. "A thought that Owen understood."

"Yes, there is work to keep you from nostalgia."

"My work?" Carol drew her hand across her brow. "If any work would do that, surely mine should. Yet it doesn't. I keep telling myself how lucky I am to have had a chance like that but somehow . . . well, I just don't seem to adjust myself somehow. I'm not a good actress. I have no spark and it doesn't mean anything to me. Perhaps it will come. I'm reading a play now."

"Then you are going back this season?"

"I suppose so," she said diffidently. "At least it fills my time and keeps me from thinking of myself. And in its way, I think it must be useful work. People have to be amused."

"There are a great many other things that people need. Things that you have to give them."

"That I have to give them?" Carol asked surprised.

"Yes. There is a quietude about you. You have a depth of understanding and sympathy. A great many people need that. I see it every day in my work."

"Perhaps I might study social service work. I think I would, like that. Is that what you mean?"

"Perhaps. You might make an excellent nurse. Do you think you would like to go into training?"

"No-o-o. You see I had so many years with mother. I do want to do useful work but I don't want to spend four years in a hospital. I want to work but I want to be free too. Do you see?"

"Yes." Owen would say that; he would understand her.

"This is vacation time and if you would like to try some other kind of work, I might be able to get you something in a doctor's office. Do you think you would like that?"

"I should like that very much indeed but you are too kind."

"Not at all. I'll be glad to see what's going on. You see, I understand what you feel. The need of work in some of us is as natural as breathing just as the nostalgia we spoke of a little while ago is a vital part of us."

"But, of course, you have Kathy. . . . Carol hadn't meant to say that. "Yes, I have Kathy," Owen said in a lower tone.

"Kathy is so vivacious. All my life I've wanted to be like her," Carol rattled on with false brightness. "She was the prettiest little girl. And now she is so gay. . . . So chic. She makes a room come alive when she steps into it. You know what I mean?"

"I do indeed. And you do something to a room when you come into it." Owen had forgotten that this was the first time he had even seen his fiancée's cousin alone.

"She was here to visit me before she left," Carol said hurriedly. "She says you are planning on a December wedding. I can see her now, as lovely as she will be in her wedding gown. Kathy will make a beautiful bride."

"Yes, she will." He had risen. "It's getting late. It's almost midnight and I've kept you up much too late. Thank you, Carol, thank you for a most happy evening."

She wanted to ask him to come again but something in her kept her from uttering it and he did not ask for an invitation.

When he had gone, the room was filled with him, with the smoke from his pipe which hung in the air, with the impression in the chintz chair where he had been sitting and with the echo of his words.

Deliberately, Carol emptied the ash tray, flung wide the windows, shook the chair cushion and fastened her thoughts on a book she had been reading but his face came before her and the printed page and she turned out the light to shut it out.

The next morning he telephoned her.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

Circleville fans are hailing a vivid new co-starring team, Spencer Tracy and Virginia Bruce, in M-G-M's "The Murder Man," at the Cliftona Theatre today and tomorrow. They portray New York newspaper people, Tracy a hard-hitting star reporter and Miss Bruce a sophisticated co-sister who cannot control her own heart, in a drama that revolves around the solution of a mysterious crime. "The Murder Man" is proving one of the new season's smash hits.

Another hit on the same program is "Calm Yourself" in which Robert Young and Madge Evans are again teamed.

CHICK AT THE CIRCLE

Stand aside, Lee Tracy! Make way for Chick Chandler! Chick, now playing at the Circle Theatre, now replaces Lee as the fastest talking actor of the screen. In "Circumstantial Evidence," the new Chesterfield picture at the Circle theatre, Chick, an erstwhile comic, essays a serious role and, for some reason, adds new speed to his already rapid speech. Lon Young, production manager for Chesterfield, reports that an actual stop-watch clocking timed Chick at five seconds for a nine-line speech. And, yet, despite his speed, his enunciation is so perfect that every word is perfectly clear. It is to be supposed now that Chick will be going after Floyd Gibbon's record next. Or, perhaps Ted Husing's.

THE OWL AND THE PUSSY-CAT

The Owl and the Pussy-cat went to sea

In a beautiful pea-green boat; They took some honey, and plenty of money

Wrapped up in a five-pound note.

The Owl looked up to the stars above

And sang to a small guitar, "O lovely Pussy, O Pussy, my love,

What a beautiful Pussy you are, You are,

You are! What a beautiful Pussy you are!"

Pussy said to the Owl, "You elegant fowl!

How charmingly sweet you sing! Oh! let us be married, too long we have tarried;

But what shall we do for a ring?" They sailed away, for a year and a day,

To the land where the bong-tree grows; And there in a wood a Piggy-wig stood,

With a ring at the end of his nose, His nose,

His nose, With a ring at the end of his nose.

"Dear Pig, are you willing to sell for one shilling

Your ring?" Said the Piggy, "I will." So they took it away, and were married next day,

By the Turkey who lives on the hill. They dined on mince and slices of quince,

Which they ate with a runcible spoon; And hand in hand, on the edge of the sand,

They danced by the light of the moon, The moon,

The moon, They danced by the light of the moon.

TO A LITTLE GIRL

Her eyes are like forget-me-nots,

So loving, kind and true;

Her lips are like a pink sea-shell

Just as the sun shines through;

Her hair is like the waving grain

In summer's golden light;

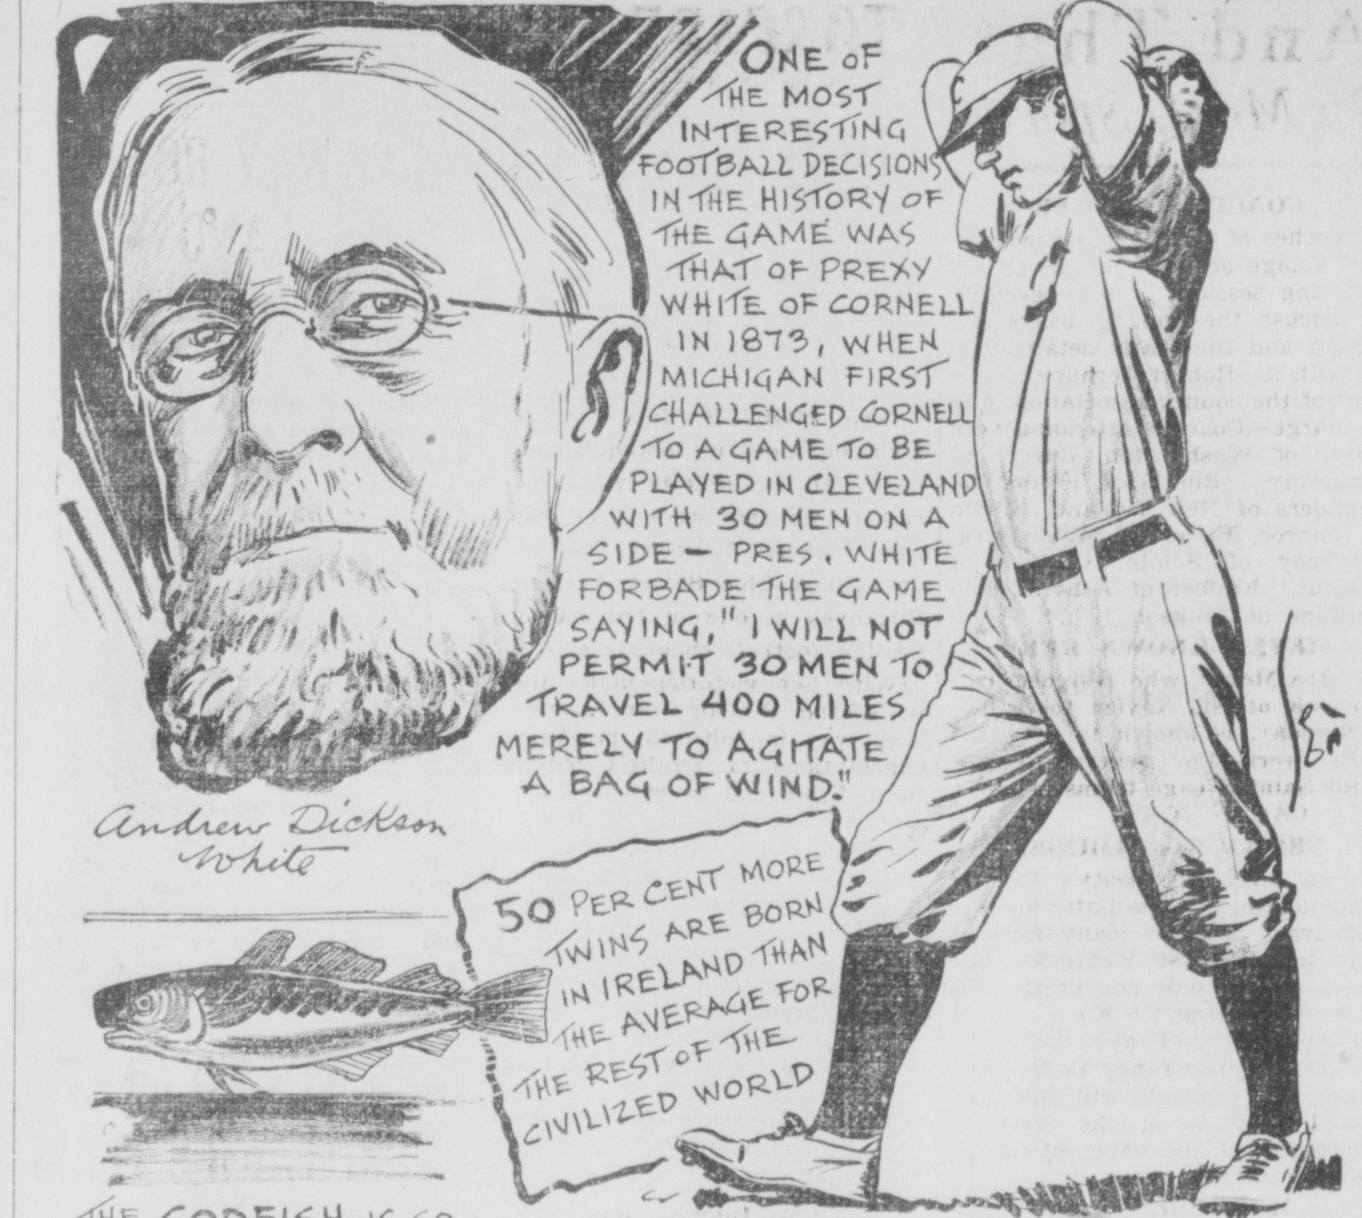

And, best of all, her little soul

Is, like a lily, white.

Hitler Getting Austrian Nazis Named to Key Positions in Vienna

WASHINGTON — While Mussolini, chief protector of Austria from the bogey of Nazism, has been busy in Africa, Hitler has been making a lot of quiet headway.

Confidential reports by the American Legation in Vienna indicate that Hitler has adopted the strategy of peaceful infiltration rather than forceful seizure.

To this end Colonel von Papen, former German Chancellor, now German Minister to Austria, has informed Austrian authorities that pro-Nazi Austrians must be appointed to key positions in the Vienna Government. In return, he promised that Hitler would forego armed invasion.

On one occasion von Papen called on Chancellor Schuschnigg and handed him a list of Austrian Nazis whose appointments were necessary. The appointments were made.

Seasickness

Friends of PWA Harold Ickes are not worried over a clash with his WPA rival, Harry Hopkins, while both are aboard the Houston.

The encounter they worry about is between Ickes and the sea. He is an easy prey to seasickness, usually avoids the sea.

Once before, when invited to accompany the President, he declined emphatically.

"I will give my life for my President, but I will not get seasick for him!"

War Weapons

One big thing worrying the French and their Little Entente allies right now is the age of their armament. Ever since 1920 they have been busy arming, with the result that a lot of their weapons are pretty well outmoded.

France, for instance, has the biggest airplane force in Europe. But out of her total of 2,800 planes, only about 1,000 are modern and of any real military value.

On the other hand, the Germans, who were held back by the Versailles Treaty, have been building the most modern and up-to-date fighting planes in the world. The German force, despite its size is effectively superior to the French.

The same is true of German tanks. At the recent German maneuvers in Nuremberg, new Nazi tanks came bowling across a rough terrain at sixty miles an hour.

French military attaches, invited to the maneuvers, watched with bulging eyes. They had nothing to equal them.

Prohibition Aftermath

So completely does the Supreme Court spot-light play on New Deal test cases that nobody takes notice of a mere matter of two million dollars, involved in the case known as The United States versus The Glidden Company.

More interested in collecting than in crusading, Attorney General Cummings is pushing his case because it looks like a good chance that was muffed by his predecessor.

It was in Prohibition days that Glidden allegedly diverted the alcohol regarding which they are being sued today. It is charged that Glidden bought alcohol ostensibly to make lacquer and lacquer thinner, then "cleaned" it and sold it for beverage purposes, paying no tax.

A lax enforcement system during Prohibition avoided test cases. But last year a smart young lawyer in Cummings' office saw a chance to open fire for big money, and sold the idea to his chief.

The Glidden case involves only a little more than two million dollars. But if won, it will pave the way for collecting millions from other companies. Biggest bill would be paid by U. S. Industrial Alcohol Company—$8,140,000.

Though the total is twenty millions, Justice Department lawyers privately admit they will be jubilant if they collect half of it.

First Lady Friend

Inside word is that Elsie Riepley Clapp, close friend of Mrs. Roosevelt, is on the skirts. She is getting out as "Educational Supervisor" of the Reedsville, W. Va., Substinence Homestead project.

Brought in just a year ago with great kudos, she now being eased out in the direction of the Friends Service Committee, where she will get a new job.

Though a woman of high ability, her methods were too thought sweeping and high-handed.

MASTERING BRIDGE (29)

TO RESEMBLE do well, and to enable partner to know what he requires to take-out a no trump into his best suit, the opening no trump bidder should have at least three reasonably well guarded suits, containing not less than two and one-half quick tricks and a total of at least five probable tricks.

To shift sound 1-No Trump into a suit, with expectations of doing well, the one taking out should hold an absolute minimum of four probable tricks, including one quick trick and be able to win at least three trump tricks, presuming that the no trump bidder holds at least three trumps and that the remaining three trumps are held 3-2.

A hand no stronger than the foregoing cannot expect to go game unless partner strongly supports the suit call. A four-trick hand has no rebid, but a five-trick hand may rebid once. If partner bids 2-No Trumps over the first showing of the suit, its holder may bid 3 of the suit. If the no trump bidder at once bids 3 of partner's suit, its holder may bid 4.

The following holdings are worth an overall of partner's 1-No Trump, but whether he bids 2-No Trumps or makes a minimum assist of the suit call, the holding is not worth a rebid:

A-10-7-6-2, with not less than a side K.

K-Q-7-6-2, with not less than a side K.

K-Q-J-6-2, with not less than a side K.

A-Q-J-6-2, even without side strength.

K-Q-J-10-2, even without side strength.

A-9-6-4-3-2, even without side strength.

Add a single probable side trick to any one of the above holdings and the hand is worth a single rebid. Add two probable side tricks, instead of one, and each of the above holdings is worth two rebids.

A six-trick hand, with ability to win four or five trump tricks, had better take out with a three-bid, instead of a two-bid, to disclose game expectations at once. Probably the no trump bidder will bid 2-1/3 Trumps over an attempted take-out of 2-add. Unless you can jump to game in the suit he may bid 3-No Trumps, over a second minimum suit rebid. Usually his reason is to insure the opening lead coming up to his hand instead of going through it.

A solid minor suit, unless able to go game, justifies jumping partner's 1-No Trump to 3-No Trumps.

COACHES GATHER

Coaches of the various township and village schools met in an interesting session Tuesday evening to discuss the coming basketball season and the many details that go with it—Robert Terhune, president of the county association, was in charge—Coaches attending were Boyer of Washington, Burger of Pickaway, Busch of Perry-twp, Saunders of New Holland, Brown of Monroe, Fullen of Muhlenberg, Hackney of Scioto, Griffith of Walnut, Kauber of Ashville, and Terhune of Jackson *

MEYER KNOWN HERE

Joe Meyer, who resigned as coach of St. Xavier football Tuesday, is known to several followers—For several years his Saint X cage teams played the CAC *

CROWD TO DIMINISH

Ohio State university's football game against Drake Saturday will not draw near so many fans as did that against Kentucky last week—Drake will not bring the several thousand Kentucky brought along; Drake does not strike a popular fancy as did Kentucky, and neither will the high school students of the state be the guests of the university for a two-bit admission *

MAY USE SOPHS

Reports are going the rounds in the capital city that Coach Francis Schmidt may use an entirely undergrad 11 to start against the invaders. In the backfield would be Wysalk at quarter, Williams and Nardi at the halves, and McDonald at fullback—Not even Capt. Gomer Jones would be in the lineup, according to the dopesters *

DETROIT ENTHUSIASM

The picture printed on Page 1 of Tuesday's Herald depicted enthusiasm in the nth degree—It showed Goose Goslin, veteran outfielder, being mauled by Manager Mike Cochrane and Pitcher Tommy Bridges after driving in the winning run in the last game of the world series—Both maulers had quite a lot to do with the result *

GRIMM TO SEEK THREE NEW MEN

CHICAGO, Oct. 9—All that was left of the 1935 Chicago Cubs today was a stack of forwarding addresses.

Before scattering over the country for the winter they were careful to visit the business office, leave instructions for the forwarding of their world's series loser's checks—$4,554.00 per man.

Manager Charley Grimm lost no time in breaking for his farm near St. Louis. But he'll be back soon, he said, to talk over next year's plans with Owner P. K. Wrigley. He intimated several members of the Cubs will be on the trading block.

Grimm intimated he would shop around for another pitcher, a catcher and an outfielder. But he was silent as to the bait he would offer.

"I'll be busy at the winter sessions," he said, "and may have some news for the fans before then. I know what I need and that's what I'm going after."

DRAKE HOPES TO SCARE BIG OSU GRID 11

Bulldogs Have Two Victories for Season; Ubl is Triple-Threat Back

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 9—Swinging along up football's comeback trail, Drake university's football forces this week head eastward, where Saturday they run up against Ohio State's battering Buckeyes in one of the nation's leading football encounters.

With two victories under their belts, the Bulldogs are going a long way in fulfilling pre-season expectations of Drake's football fans. From end to end and from leadback to tailback, the wearers of the White and Blue look as if they are headed for a big year.

At the ends where Big Lester Sandstrom and Jumping Jack Parisho are stationed, there need be no worry for the Drake followers. Sandstrom, a 6'2" giant, has acquired the art of nabbing passes, especially when they are thrown by My Ubl. Not only does this boy catch passes but he has made good use of the thing they call tackling.

Cole Biggest Man

Leonard Cole, the giant of the team is a rugged, tough, hard working, 208-pound tackle.

Herb Hedlund, a big sophomore tackle, is regarded as one of the most promising players on the squad. Herb is a human dynamo and a power both offensively and defensively in the line.

Walt Miller, guard is called one of the best linemen in the history of the school. In on every play and usually on the bottom, Miller has a great knack at diagnosing the opponents' plays.

Tommy McLaughlin, who pairs with Miller at the other guard, has a world of fight and is always in there busting up interference.

At center is Bill Pettit, a smart and aggressive player. On top of every play, Bill is a standout in the line.

Ubl Triple-Threat

My Ubl, who is usually stationed at fullback, is a triple-threat back who really knows the game. Ubl is one of the country's best kickers and passers.

At left halfback is Chuck Orebaugh, a snakey hipped speed demon. Chuck is also a triple-threat back, does most of the ball totting and has a chance to become one of the greatest backs that ever played at Drake.

Joe Auer, sophomore halfback, is the hardest running back on the team. He is a dangerous back at all times. Joe can block with the best of them and clears the way for his team-mates.

Bill Fulton, who usually starts at the other backfield post, is the unsung hero of the team. Bill is the boy that does the blocking and more than his share of the tackling. A hard blocker, he is used constantly in that department. When Bill is out, in comes Al Perry, a deadly blocker, who is bound to see a lot of action during the season.

JOE MEYER QUILTS

CINCINNATI, Oct. 9—Joe Meyer, Xavier university athletic director and football coach, resigned today effective December 1. No reason was offered, but reported friction between Meyer and the faculty was recalled.

As Teddy said, every cause has its fringe. The hard part is to tell where the fringe begins.

PICKAWAY BOARD BUYS LAND FOR FIELD DAY SCENE

With the annual county track and field meet scheduled for Pickaway-twp next spring, the board of education of that school has started activities which will provide the institution a splendid athletic field on which the contests will be staged.

Announcement was made Wednesday of the purchase of 8.86 acres of land directly south of the school building from Mrs. N. T. Ruggles, S. Court-st., for $2,658.

A truck and a baseball field will be constructed and other parts of the property will be landscaped.

The annual field meet usually attracts several hundred persons and the Pickaway-twp board wants to put its best foot forward as the host.

BOBCATS TO MEET TOM YARR'S TEAM

ATHENS, Oct. 9—Ohio university, geared in victory stride, will get back in the thick of the gridiron wars this Friday when they meet Tommy Yarr's John Carroll eleven at the Cleveland Municipal Stadium.

Idle last week-end, after their victory over the strong University of Illinois team the previous week, the Bobcats, starting Friday, will go through the remainder of their eight game schedule without another pause.

Much of the Ohio defense this Friday will rest on the robust toes of Bob Snyder and Bill Jurkovic, punters. It was these two Bobcats who booted Zupke's eleven back deep in their own territory and kept them from launching their vaunted passing attack until the Illini took desperate measures and began tossing them in the last quarter. In that game, Snyder and Jurkovic averaged 47 yards per kick with the opponents averaging their runbacks at two and a half yards.

Art Lewis, Ohio's fast 200-pound tackle and possibly the greatest Bobcat tackle in football history, will be another bulwark on defense. Lewis has the knack of taking care of both his own side of the line and of the opposite.

NAVIN TO EXPAND PARK FOR TIGERS

DETROIT, Oct. 9—Plans for spending $500,000 to enlarge Navin field, home of the world champion Detroit Tigers, stood disclosed today as many belated "hang-over" stories of the 1935 world series were recounted.

Owner Frank J. Navin, in announcing the expansion program at victory dinner for the Tigers attended by 800 "guests" who paid $5 a plate, said between 10,000 and 12,000 seats would be added to the ball park. It will give the field a normal seating capacity of about 40,000 and a world series capacity of about 60,000.

Navin also suggested to the automobile magnates at the dinner that they might figure out some way to crowd 300,000 persons into 50,000 seats, the problem he faced with during the series that ended Monday.

SINGLE WING IS GRID FUNDAMENTAL

Former Notre Dame Quarterback Explains Sequence of Off-Tackle Smash, End Run

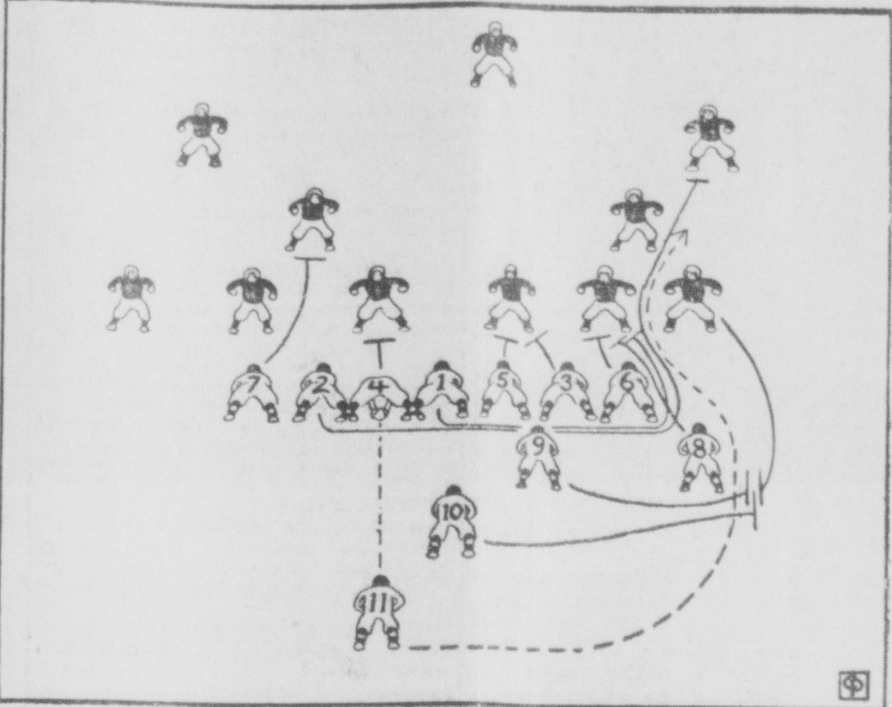

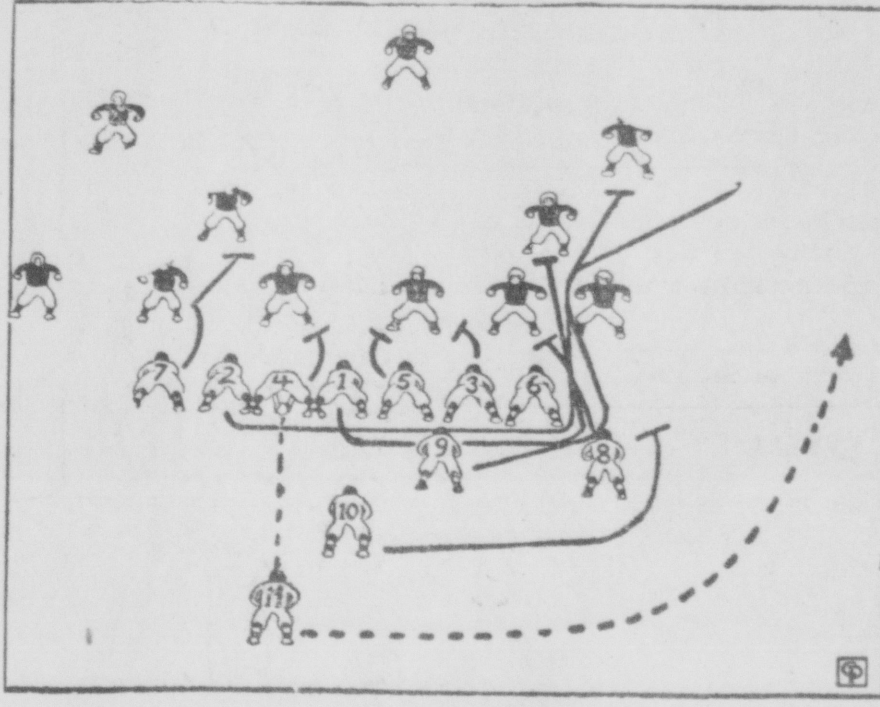

Diagram shows off-tackle play

End run outlined

By HARRY STUHLREHER
Coach Villanova college

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 9— Besides giving individual advice to boys, building their confidence, checking their academic standings, arranging schedules and trips, and a few other details, a football coach is expected to build a football offense that wins games.

Probably the most universally used offense in high school and college is the Warner single wing-back. In discussing it, it must be remembered that an offense must be adjusted to the material at hand. One hears of many unsuccessful coaches who adhere to a definite offense and try to make the players fit it. The coach with the best record is the one who adapts his type of play to the material. Fundamental theories on offense will not have to be changed, but plays must be varied so the boys on the squad can operate them to better advantage.

Qualifications of Players

Speed, deception and power are the necessary qualifications in any offense. You will concentrate more on power if you have big, strongly built boys, and more on speed if you have fast steppers. The deception angle incorporates itself with the other two.

Since we are to take the single wing offense, I wish to show what type of men are required for the respective positions, numbered in accompanying diagrams.

No. 1, lineman, the key man on the line, is the best running guard. He has to lead on all interference both ways. In other words, he is backfield man on the line. No. 2 and No. 3 are the second best interfering linemen. No. 2 helps to lead the interference to the right while No. 3 will head plays coming to the left on the short side.

No. 4, center, has big responsibility in getting plays away with accurate passing and at the same time carrying out his blocking assignment. No. 5 is called the stand-pat tackle. He ordinarily is neither fast nor nifty enough to lead interference. He stays put in the line and blocks straight away.

No. 6 is the best blocking end and therefore is placed at the strong point of the attack while No. 7 is installed on the short side for even though he may be a good pass receiver or a good blocker in the secondary, he is not as accomplished in straight away blocking.

In the backfield the respective positions call for these duties: No. 8 has to be a good blocker as well as a pretty good runner in order to carry the ball on reverse plays to the left. No. 9 is the blocking back. He is the heavy duty player to the backfield as No. 1 is to the line. This player seldom carries the ball.

No. 10 is the line plunger and ball handler. In this latter assignment, he starts off most all spinner plays and reverses by receiving the ball from center and then handing it to either No. 11 or No. 8. This position calls for an extremely steady player.

The triple-threat artist is No. 11, the tail back. He must be a good runner, passer and blocker. The better he is in all these departments, the more success the team will have.

The first, strongest and best in football is the off-tackle. We then build our offense from there. In diagramming these plays, the second will evolve from the first. They all have to start alike, and look the same until they actually hit the spot designated.

On the off-tackle play as shown in the diagram at left, it is necessary to double up on your blocking at the point where the play is going. Hence, we assign No. 6 and No. 8 to the tackle. The latter is the important blocker as he has to take the defensive tackle in. No. 5 and No. 3 block in the defensive left guard. No. 1 leads in interference through play hole and blocks defensive fullback. No. 4 blocks defensive center. No. 2 follows No. 1 in interference and takes defensive left half while No. 7 brushes tackle and gets defensive center backing up the line. Backfield men, No. 9 and No. 10, team up to block out defensive left end. Ball carrier No. 11 runs parallel to line of scrimmage to let interference form and then cuts at right angle up through the off-tackle hole.

After this play is run a few times, the defensive left end will have a tendency to smoothen closer to reinforce the tackle. The play then is the end run, in the diagram at right. The assignments are exactly the same, the only difference being No. 9 fakes at the end to draw him in and then continues down to block the defensive left halfback. No. 3 will then block in the end by himself with the ball carrier, of course, running around end.

You will notice that the running guards No. 1 and No. 2 go through the same off-tackle hole. As a result of the similarity, the end is completely fooled and the play becomes a successful maneuver. This sequence is fundamental football. It may look simple, but when you consider that Gil Dobie spends hours and hours in rehearsal of just these two plays, there must be something deeper than appears on the surface.

SCHMIDT TO CALL ON SOPHOMORES

COLUMBUS, Oct. 9—The blocking posts and tackling dummies near Ohio stadium today were reinforced after Coach Francis Schmidt of Ohio State sent the Buckeyes through the lengthy blocking and tackling drill he promised them following the Kentucky game.

After completing the drill in these departments, the Bucks engaged in a dummy scrimmage against a freshman team.

A few changes in the Ohio starting lineup is certain to be in vogue when the Bucks meet Drake here Saturday. Jumping Joe Williams, Barborton player who stole the Kentucky show, might start at left halfback in place of the veteran Dick Heekin.

Charley Ream, huge sophomore tackle, will probably be at left tackle in place of Charley Hamrick, 245-pound regular, who has been watching practice from the sidelines because of an injured knee. Schmidt wasn't too pleased with Hamrick's work in the opener.

RICKEY ENDS GIANT'S MOVE FOR COLLINS

Acts Terry for Schumacher and Hubbell, or Himself; Fears Cubs Next Year

NEW YORK, Oct. 9—Far from being permanently affected by the disquieting, almost incredible manner in which they played some of those losing games, in the world series, the Chicago Cubs will be harder than ever to beat now, in the opinion of Branch Rickey, the headman of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Outside was madness. The windows rattled and roared with the violence of a city that was celebrating Detroit's first world's championship but, unheeding, Rickey's voice went quietly on to say that the Tigers could and possibly would repeat in the American league, but that the going would be tougher, much tougher, next time.

Trade Dizzy

As for his own club, he intimated vast and even disconcerting changes, although at the mention of this writer's story about Dizzy Dean being traded to the Chicago Cubs, or elsewhere, he was pleased to smile. Yet only the day before I had learned from other sources that either Dean will go—or other must.

The New York Giants, he dismissed almost patronizingly.

"We are not figuring much on the Giants next year," he said. "Terry knows that he has to do things with his club but I suspect he doesn't know how many. He talked to us about Rip Collins and I told him he could have Collins for Schumacher and Hubbell. I also told Terry he could have for himself, even up."

"The Cubs," Rickey went on, "need only a little more pitching. Outside of that, those kid players will be better for the licking they took here. Galan swings at anything he can see. He'll get over that. Cavarretta will come on, too, with Hack, Demaree, O'Dea and Bill Lee, the pitcher, showing natural improvement. Yes, it's the Cubs we'll have to beat."

EAGLES PLAN BIG MEETING OCTOBER 20

District Initiation Scheduled; Organization Leading in Security Program

Final preparations were made for the large class of candidates to be initiated at an Eagle district initiation to be held here on Sunday, Oct. 20, at a meeting Tuesday evening.

Although the Fraternal Order of Eagles rose from sixth to second place among the fraternal organizations during the past few years, they are making a special effort this year to double their membership in celebration of the signing by President Roosevelt of the Social Security Act on Aug. 14. This fraternity, which has pioneered in Social Justice legislation, has a deep personal interest in this act of which Miss Francis Perkins, Secretary of Labor wrote: "It provides the majority of our people with a substantial measure of security in infancy and childhood, in economic crisis of their working life, and in their old age."

The law puts into effect several humanitarian measures for which the Eagles have fought for a third of a century. At the meeting a summary of the important sections of the act were brought out, and also these facts were again brought to the minds of the members.

In 1921, when the Fraternal Order of Eagles began the fight for Old Age Pensions, not a single state or county in the United States had an Old Age Pension law in force. In Aug. 1935, when the Social Security act became a law, 34 states had Old Age Pension laws on their statute books, thanks to the continuous campaign which the Eagles carried on.

In 1930, long before unemployment was recognized as a serious problem, the Eagles had worked out a plan to provide "every adult American with a steady job at a saving wage." This plan is embodied in the Eagles-Ludlow bill for the Stabilization of Employment, now Bill No. 2 on the House calendar. Significant features of this bill have already been adopted by the Roosevelt Administration. The Eagles are continuing the fight to put an end to all unemployment.

The first Mothers' Pension Law in the United States was drafted and administered by an Eagle, Judge Edward Everett Porterfield, of Kansas City. Mo. Eagles pioneered with him in securing passage of this law. Today 44 states have Mothers' Pension laws.

The pen which was used to sign the Social Security Act was presented to Senator Joseph P. Guffey, of Pennsylvania, who represented the Fraternal Order

Leaf tobacco being sold to highest bidder

United States Treasury Building

From 1900 up to 1934 the leaf tobacco used for cigarettes increased from 13,084,037 lbs. to 326,093,357 lbs.; an increase of 2392%

It takes mild ripe tobacco to make a good cigarette.

During the year ending June 30, 1900, the Government collected from cigarette taxes $3,969,191

For the year ending June 30, 1934, the same taxes were $350,299,442 an increase of 8725% —a lot of money.

Cigarettes give a lot of pleasure to a lot of people.

More cigarettes are smoked today because more people know about them—they are better advertised. But the main reason for the increase is that they are made better—made of better tobaccos; then again the tobaccos are blended—a blend of Domestic and Turkish tobaccos. Chesterfield is made of mild, ripe tobaccos. Everything that science knows about is used in making it a milder and better-tasting cigarette. We believe you will enjoy them

By INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE

Italy slowed up her military campaign in Ethiopia today, apparently casting an anxious eye on activities of the League of Nations at Geneva.

Although outwardly and ostensibly heedless of the League's plans, which include a program of sanctions against her, Italy under the surface was deeply concerned over the Geneva procedure, which already has made her an outcast among nations and which is aimed to check her plan of East African conquest.

Faces Jersey Justice

Court of Errors and Appeals Unanimous in Verdict Bruno Must Die.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 9.—Bruno Richard Hauptmann must die for the murder of baby Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., the New Jersey court of errors and appeals decreed today by an unanimous decision.

Solemnly the 13 black-robed justices of New Jersey's highest tribunal voted to sustain the guilty verdict returned at the "trial of the century" in Flemington on the night of Feb. 13.

In so doing the last chance for another trial for the country's strangest criminal was blocked in this state.

One Court Left There is only one remaining avenue of appeal—to the Supreme Court of the United States.

The doomed man's lawyers promptly announced that this course will be taken.

In an air of grave quiet, and with only 40 persons in the courtroom, the justices went through their calendar in a routine manner, reading decisions in 70 cases before they came to Hauptmann's.

"No. 99—at 11:41 a. m."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—Bruno Richard Hauptmann has a one to 50 chance to win a hearing in the United States Supreme court, experienced court observers estimated today.

The high court will review his trial and conviction of the murder of the infant son of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh only if it appears that the court of New Jersey denied him the guarantees of the federal constitution.

ZENGE TRIAL OPENS TODAY; SANITY PLEA

Chicago Authorities Demand Death Sentence for Young Missourian, Jilted

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—A tragic romance begun in the old Mark Twain country along the Missouri shores of the Mississippi will be unfolded in the bleak reality of the courtroom today.

Mandeville N. Zenge, lean, lank, poor young carpenter of Canton, Mo., entangled in an involved web of evidence, will hear the state demand that he pay with his life for the mutilation murder of Dr. Walter J. Bauer, his successful love rival.

The state's star witness is pretty Louise Schaefer Bauer, courted by Zenge for ten years, and now asked to help send him to the electric chair.

Eloped With Bauer

The pretty nurse eloped with Dr. Bauer two days before she was to have married Zenge. But a few hours before her elopement Zenge is said to have visited her, shown her the wedding ring, made final plans for the ceremony.

Present to hear the unfolding of the strange and tragic romance will be her townsfolk from Kirksville; Zenge's friends and kin from Canton, and probably relatives of the victim from Cleveland, O.

Zenge, tall, taciturn and at times defiant, has successfully resisted all efforts of police to gain his confession that he abducted Dr. Bauer from an Ann Arbor, Mich., hotel, forced him to drive to Chicago where on the far south side Dr. Bauer was found fatally mutilated on the morning of July 31.

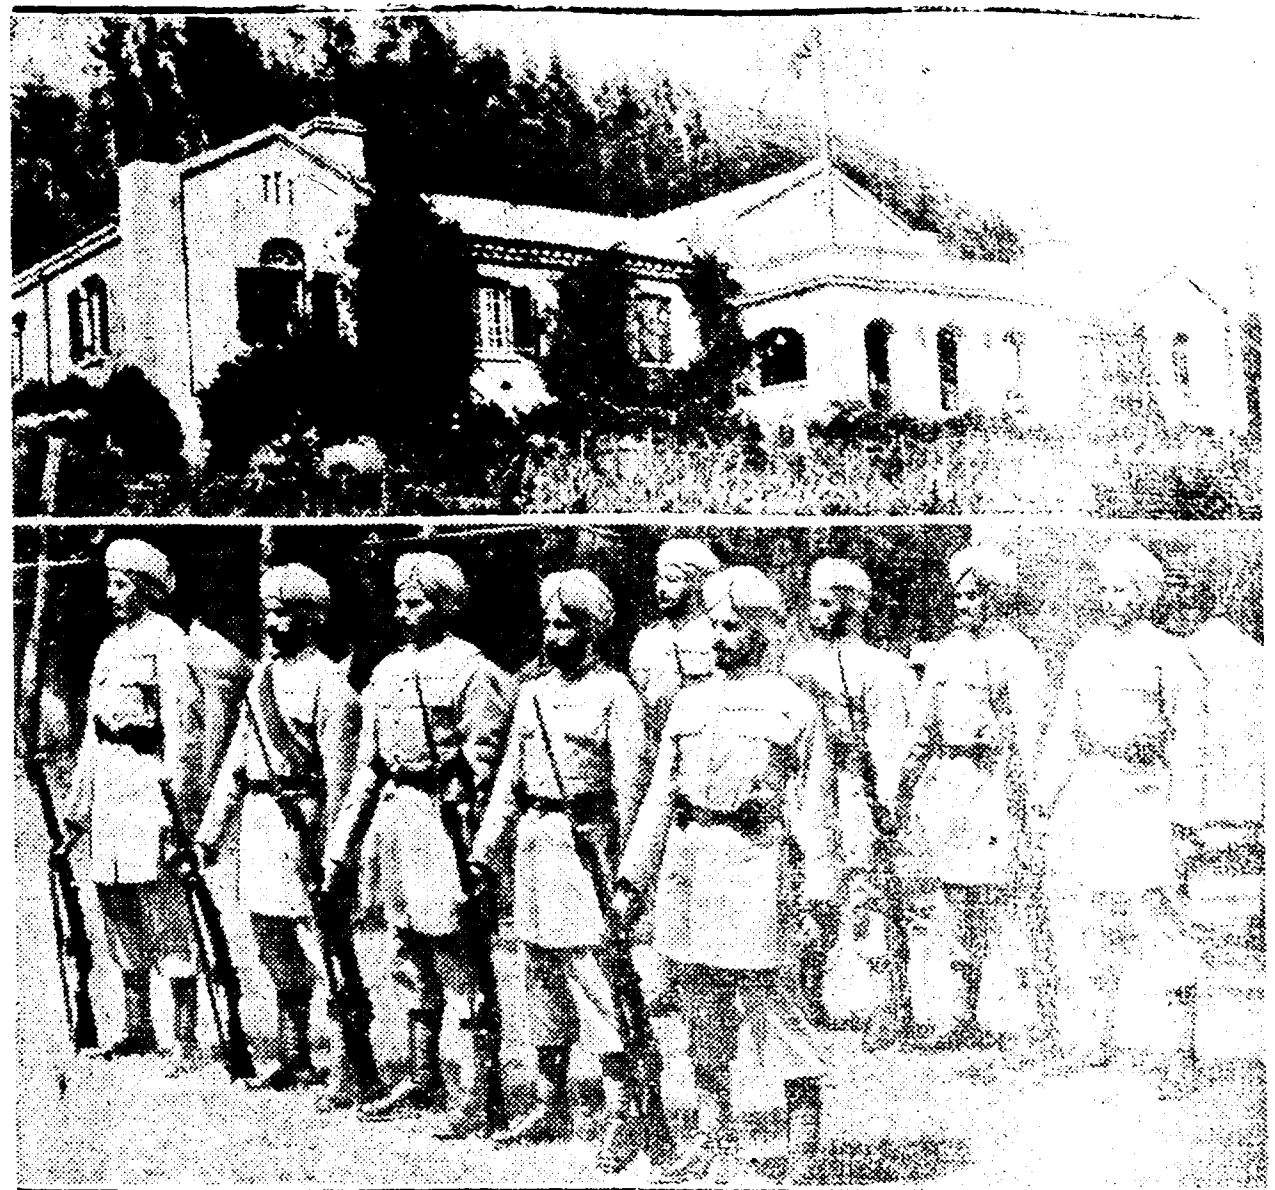

Dr. Bauer's marriage to Louise Schaefer took place in Kirksville, where he was employed as a teacher of chemistry, she as a nurse, July 14.

Taking Graduate Work

Immediately after the ceremony he returned to Ann Arbor where he was taking graduate work at the University of Michigan. His bride was to have visited him the week-end of his death.

Defense strategy is a moot question. But it is generally conceded the defense will be insanity, reviving the question of "irresist-

Thus the defense would contend that Zenge, finding the girl lost to him, considered it his duty to hunt down the man who married her; that about this time his mind cracked under the strain, and that he was not responsible for the happenings of the next few days.

W. M. Lane, director, expects the large display in many years because of the favorable economic condition.

Book More Fruit

Fruit canners may be slightly surprised to learn that James Sweeting, chairman of that division, announced that he has sent premium lists to various sections hoping to obtain larger exhibits. Although critical of the show, Mr. Sweeting still hopes only one show in the state will be as good as this.

Paul H. Finner, president of the fair, predicted a large display of exhibits. He is chairman of that department.

All schools in the county will take part in the school exhibit this year to be held at the Armory in conjunction with the Junior fair, according to Carl D. Bennett, chairman.

Over 500 4-H club members will bring about 600 exhibits to the Junior fair based on exhibit lists filed with P. K. Blair, county extension agent.

G. H. Bradley, senior chairman of the Farm Bureau of America, has a great deal of interest in this project of the Junior fair and thanked the society for incorporating the fair projects as a part of the regular show.

Others on Jr. Fair

Others who spoke in behalf of the Junior fair were Mrs. Ward Robinson, chairman of the Girl Scouts; Miss Olive Graham, Watnuta, chairman of the home economics department; and William E. Bowers, Ashville, junior member of the Boy Scout department.

H. L. Strohmeier, director, introduced Mrs. E. S. Stephens, chairman of the fancy work division and Mrs. James Moffitt, and George Becker, assistant chairman for the flower show.

Mrs. Stephens predicted a larger exhibit than last year when 438 entries were listed, 149 of which were units.

The flower show largely depends on the weather, Mrs. Moffitt reported, as the frosts have spoiled a large number of displays.

About 50 entries are expected this year in the beauty parade, according to C. G. Chaffin, chairman. The first year seven took part, last year the entry list contained 23 names, and this year all organizations and schools have been asked to cooperate.

Earl L. Kibler, one of the chairmen of the industrial parade, one of the largest parades of the show, plans a finer parade than that of two years ago that won the praise of show directors and citizens. The Chamber of Commerce at present is constructing a beautiful float for this event to be held on Friday afternoon.

Others who attended the meeting in behalf of the parades were: Harold E. Baughman, assistant parade director; Miss Katherine Chaffin and Mrs. James Brown, chairmen of the baby parade; Miss Mimmi Lytle, chairman of the character parade; Francis McGinnis and Stanley Melvin in charge of the pet parade; Senet M. Cryder, a chairman for the old vehicle parade; and Harry Briggs, horse parade director.

Director Baughman, director of the parades, introduced his assistants.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct. Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains . . . and safe for the average person to take regularly.

House floor leaders, announced they would meet Davey today to seek a compromise on the budget.

A few members of the house, who came here to dispose of the business remaining on the agenda, only to find that nothing will be done until next week to give the legislative leaders time to meet the governor in the budget arena, objected strenuously to further delay, but the house recessed again, nevertheless, at the call of Speaker J. Freer Bittinger.

The surprise action followed conference between Davey, Uble, Gessman, Rep. Arthur Hamilton (H), of Warren-co; Rep. Julian H. Schweller (D), of Fort Jennings, chairman of the finance committee, and officials of Ohio State university, who warned that the university would be unable to operate through the year unless at least part of the funds deleted from the budget is restored.

May Alter Stand

Unofficially, it was reported by legislative advisers of the governor that Davey at last is prepared to recede from his firm position against restoring any of the budget votes for the university.

He has traveled about the state considerably since his slash was made and his speeches have dwelt at length on the wisdom of trimming the university budget.

Republican members of the House, with several Democratic members, are determined to pass a new budget bill to give Ohio State and other institutions and departments money enough to provide for coal, stamps and other essentials.

Observers saw in today's move an indication that the governor, sensing defeat in the legislature, may seek to give in sufficiently to appease the university friends, yet still seek to safeguard the reductions in the budget that he has made.

BUILDING BOOM

NEAR the top of the list of activities concerned in the production of "durable goods" is the building industry. In normal times, construction operations provide an important field for the investment of capital and a major source of enjoyment. That is why statistics of building are carefully followed, and why the present improvement, slight though it may be by comparison to the boom years, is widely welcomed.

Contracts for building let in August in the area east of the Rocky mountains represent an expenditure of 168 million dollars, which is only about one-third of the monthly average for 1929, but involves an outlay half again as large as that for the corresponding month of last year. The relatively large increase in residential construction, noted generally throughout the country, is being attributed in considerable measure to the greater availability of mortgage funds. These include both money supplied by private sources and that offered in connection with the government's program to encourage building. The important fact here, however, is not the cause but the result, which has been to stimulate one of the principal industries in which the depression and unemployment have centered.

If the construction statistics are still unsatisfactory from the point of view of the country's normal economic condition, they yet mark a significant improvement.

THE ARMY MULE

IF MULES know everything, as veteran mule skinnners say they do, there must be triumphing braying in army corridors. For the news dispatches tell of the Italian forces' need of mules and of their arrival in Africa by the shipload. Evidently the sentimental farewells to the mule as a fundamental necessity in warfare have been premature.

Armies of the world have been mechanizing and motorizing at a rapid rate. Trucks carry the supplies and ammunition, tractors haul the guns. Cavalry is forsaking its horses for light tanks and armored cars. Swift motor transport is provided for the infantry. All very well for paved roads and smooth terrain, but battles are not fought in such a locale. If the country isn't rough in the beginning, shell fire and aerial bombardment soon make it so, and motors have their limitations.

So the army mule wags his long ears and swishes his shaven tail in comfortable knowledge that machines never will replace him completely.

No wonder middle-class people are best. They don't need vice to forget their misery or escape their boredom.

The fault isn't in Junior's behavior. An old man would seem dumb if you expected him to behave like a kid.

OUR KNOWLEDGE of the processes of digestion is comparatively new and is being added to constantly. The most striking we find are when that occurred in the process of digestion. His experiments have been reported in various ways, probably the most extensive studies being those of Rehfuss and Hawley. They moved food through the stomach tubes at various stages and times of the digestive process in many hundred different people with every kind of food. Perhaps the most useful conclusion which they made was that there are two types of digesters—fast and slow; those who do it in about three hours and those who do it in about four, and whose schedule

Report From England

Early this morning an interesting letter came from England. Two X-ray specialists, Doctors W. C. D. Mable and K. A. L. Scott, studied the question of digestion, as determined by the X-ray, on various kinds of foodstuffs. While X-ray studies of digestion have often been made, such extensive studies on single foodstuffs by the X-ray have never been done before.

It will be best to most people that milk is the best food to eat. A pint of water will leave the stomach in 45 minutes, a pint of boiled milk in 45 minutes. The usual time for digestion of an ordinary meal is three and one-half to four hours. Bland, unspiced, and unseasoned food is the best.

The digestive time of various foods, as determined by Doctors Mable and Scott, is as follows:

The Romance Racket

READ THIS FIRST:

But parties, pretty clothes and beads are things unattractive to Carol Kennedy had never desired until she looked into the eyes of Dr. Owen Craig, fiancé of her cousin, Kathy Prentice. Kathy is marrying Owen for social prestige alone. When Carol, an orphan, comes into a vast fortune, she suddenly decides to leave her old home in Connecticut and seek freedom and happiness in New York. Isabel Bronson, an old school chum, helps Carol to buy proper clothes and takes her to her first cocktail party where she meets Gary Crandall, a playboy. Acting on a whim, he takes her to a beauty shop from which she emerges as an attractive girl. Knowing nothing of her wealth, he helps her to meet Manfred Morris, theatrical producer, who gives her a part in a Broadway show. But Carol does not care for the theater. At Isabel's wedding she sees Owen Craig again just as Gary proposes marriage. Kathy calls on Carol to say she is going abroad. And that she came to check upon her men—Owen and Gary. Morris sends Carol the script for a new play which she is reading when Owen drops in.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 21

WHEN CAROL raised her eyes to find Owen Craig towering above her, his dark face lit with a smile, the world stopped still and in its silence she could hear her own heart pounding.

"Of course, you may have it," she said. "Please come in. There's lots of tea and lots of ice and lots of... do you like to go to the garden like a goose. Pretend this is Gary. You can always talk to him easily."

When Owen came in and saw the play script perched upon the mantel he said: "Look here, it hadn't occurred to me that you might be busy. I'll run along."

"I'm not. I have nothing else," there was a pause—"to do."

His face still held an expression of concern. She smiled at him with her eyes. "It's much too late for tea but if you'll stay for supper, I'd like to have you. That is... if you're not busy."

"I say, that will be fun," he said eagerly. "It's been long since Kathy left but why don't I take you to dinner if you're sure you're not busy?"

"Because I think it would be more fun to stay here and there's plenty of food. I'll have it ready in no time. You'll find the river interesting, and I think this unexpected coolness warrants a little hearting fire. If you'd like one, do you think you could manage it while I do things with food?"

"Can I?" he answered boyishly. "Why, for years, my family thought I was going to grow up to be a fireman before I took up dextrology. I'll have the whole place in a blaze in a jiffy."

"I hope the food won't do that," she answered laughing. "And when your fire is going, could you find plates and linen in the corner cabinet? Silver in the top drawer; and everything we'll need for a cocktail right on the third shelf... I've cut here. I think by that time I'll have our supper well tamed."

For a little while there were no words between them but the silence was intimate rather than strained. The savory smells of cooking mingled faintly with the scent of burning coals. Night dropped her curtain down and twilight filtered in the east windows laying soft veils on the cozy, home-like room. A pervading peace stole on Owen Craig and he was filled with a sense of quiet and contentment.

And when their supper was finished and Carol had come back to sit before the fire they talked again. They talked of books they both loved and music they had heard.

"Mind if I smoke?" Owen had taken a pipe from his pocket.

"Not a bit." Raising her slim figure to her knees, Carol struck a match and held it to his pipe. The firelight played on the lights of her hair and brought out the intoxicating soft perfume of it. Unguarded, Owen's appreciation flashed into his eyes as they met hers over the match. The match burned out and Carol turned away to look into the less dangerous flames in the hearth.

"This is by far the most pleasant... quietest evening and the most satisfying one I've spent in a long time."

"I feel that way too," she said quietly.

It was the low, insidious wait of a river boat whistle—that sound that brings nostalgia for places they have never seen to those who love its beckoning call that gave words to the silence following.

"I love that sound," Carol said. "I have been many places and forgotten most of them because there was nothing to remember but sights and sounds and smells. Yet since I've been living here and heard those boats going out to distant places, I've felt a vast loneliness for some place I do not know. Some day I shall find it."

"I know what you mean. You may have to travel far to find it, little Carol, and when you do you'll find it is no further than your own heart."

"Oh, there must be something else," she said, speaking a thought aloud. A thought that Owen understood.

"Yes, there is work to keep you from nostalgia."

"My work?" Carol drew her hand across her brow. "If any work would do that, surely mine should. Yet it doesn't. I keep telling myself how lucky I am to have had a chance like that but somehow... well, I just don't seem to adjust myself somehow. I'm not a good actress. I have no spark and it doesn't mean anything to me. Perhaps it will come. I'm reading a play now."

"When you are going back this season?"

"I suppose so," she said diffidly. "At least it fills my time and keeps me from thinking of myself. And in my way, I think it must be useful work. People have to be amused."

"There are a great many other things that people need. Things that you have to give them."

"That I have to give them?" Carol asked surprised.

"Yes. There is a quietude about you. You have a depth of understanding and sympathy. A great many people need that. I see it every day in my work."

"I think I might study social service work. I think I would like that. Is that what you mean?"

"Perhaps. You might make an excellent nurse. Do you think you would like to go into training?"

"No-o-o. You see I had so many years with mother. I do want to do social work but I don't want to spend four years in a hospital. I want to work but I want to be free too, do you see?"

"Yes," Owen would say that; he would understand her.

"This is vacation time and if you would like to try some other kind of work, I might be able to get you something in a doctor's office. Do you think you would like up much too?"

"I should like that very much indeed but you are too kind."

"Not at all, I'll be glad to see what's going on. You see, I understand what you feel. The need of work in some of us is as natural as breathing just as the nostalgia we speak of is a little while ago is a vital part of us."

"But, of course, you have Kathy..." Carol hadn't meant to say that.

"Yes, I have Kathy," Owen said in a lower tone.

"Kathy is so vivacious. All my life I've wanted to be like her," Carol laughed on with false brightness—she was the prettiest little girl. And now she is so gay... so white. She makes a room come alive when she steps into it. You know what I mean?"

"I do indeed. And you do something to a room when you come into it," Owen had forgotten that this was the first time he had even seen his fiancé's cousin alone.

"She was here to visit me before she left," Carol said hurriedly. "She says you are planning on a December wedding. I can see her now, as lovely as she will be in her wedding gown. Kathy will make a beautiful bride."

"Yes, she will." He had risen. "It's getting late. It's almost midnight and I've kept you up much too late. Thank you, Carol, thank you for a most happy evening."

She wanted to ask him to come again but something in her kept her from uttering it and he did not ask for an invitation.

When he had gone, the room was filled with heat and the smoke from his pipe which hung in the air, with the impression in the chintz chair where he had been sitting and with the echo of his words.

Deliberately, Carol emptied the ash tray, flung wide the windows, shook the chair cushion and fastened her eyes on a book she had been reading but his face came before her and the printed page and she turned out the light to shut it out.

The next morning he telephoned her.

"The Murder Man" is proving one of the new season's smash hits. Another hit on the same program is "Calm Yourself" in which Robert Young and Madge Evans are again teamed.

CHICK AT THE CIRCLE

Stand aside, Lee Tracy! Make way for Chick Chandler! Chick, now playing at the Circle Theatre, now replaces Lee as the fastest talking actor of the screen. In "Circumstantial Evidence," the new Chesterfield picture at the Circle theatre, Chick, an erstwhile comic, essays a serious role and, for some reason, adds new speed to his already rapid speech. Lon Young, production manager for Chesterfield, reports that an actual stop-watch clocking of Chick at the end of his second, third and fourth speeches, his enunciation is so perfect that every word is perfectly clear. It is to be supposed now that Chick will be going after Floyd Gibbon's record next. Or, perhaps Ted Husing's.

THE OWL AND THE PUSSY-CAT

The Owl and the Pussy-cat went to sea
In a beautiful pea-green boat;
They took some honey, and plenty
Of cream money—
And wrapped up in a five-pound note.

The Owl looked up to the stars above
And sang to a small guitar:
"O lovely Pussy, O Pussy, my love,
What a beautiful Pussy you are,
You are!
What a beautiful Pussy you are!"

Pussy said to the Owl, "You elegant fowl!
How charmingly sweet you sing!
Oh! let us be married, too—
Long we have tarried;
But what shall we do for a ring?"

They sailed away, for a year and a day,
To the land where the bong-tree grows;
And there in a wood a Piggy-wig stood,
With a ring at the end of his nose.
His nose,
His nose,
With a ring at the end of his nose.

"Dear Pig, are you willing to sell
For one shilling
Your ring?" Said the Piggy, "I will."

So they took it away, and were married next day,
By the Turkey who lives on the hill.
They dined on mince and slices of quince,
Which they ate with a runcible spoon;

And hand in hand, on the edge of the sand,
They danced by the light of the moon,
The moon,
The moon.

They danced by the light of the moon,
The moon,
The moon.

TO A LITTLE GIRL
Her eyes are like forget-me-nots,
So loving, kind and true;
Her lips are like a pink sea-shell
Just as the sun shines through.
Her hair is like the waving grain
In summer's golden light,
And best of all, her little soul
Is, like a lily, white.

Hitler Getting Austrian Nazis Named to Key Positions in Vienna

WASHINGTON — While Mussolini, chief protector of Austria from the bogey of Nazism, has been busy in Africa, Hitler has been making a lot of quiet headway.

Confidential reports by the American Legation in Vienna indicate that Hitler has adopted the strategy of peaceful infiltration rather than forceful seizure.

To this end Colonel von Papen, former German Chancellor, now German Minister to Austria, has informed Austrian authorities that pro-Nazi Austrians must be appointed to key positions in the Vienna Government. In return, he promised that Hitler would forego armed invasion.

On one occasion von Papen called on Chancellor Schuschnigg and handed him a list of Austrian Nazis whose appointments were necessary. The appointments were made.

"I will give my life for my President, but I will not get seasick for him!"

War Weapons

One big thing worrying the French and their Little Entente allies right now is the age of their armament. Ever since 1920 they have been busy arming, with the result that a lot of their weapons are pretty well outmoded.

France, for instance, has the biggest airplane force in Europe. But out of her total of 2,800 planes, only about 1,000 are modern and of any real military value.

On the other hand, the Germans, who were held back by the Versailles Treaty, have been building the most modern and up-to-date fighting planes in the world. The German force, despite its size is effectively superior to the French.

The same is true of German tanks. At the recent German maneuvers in Nuremberg, new Nazi tanks came bowling across a rough terrain at sixty miles an hour.

French military attaches, invited to the maneuvers, watched with bulging eyes. They had nothing to equal them.

It was in Prohibition days that Glidden allegedly diverted the alcohol regarding which they are being sued today. It is charged that Glidden bought alcohol ostensibly to make lacquer and lacquer thinner, then "cleaned" it and sold it for beverage purposes, paying no tax.

A tax enforcement system during Prohibition avoided test cases. But last year a smart young lawyer in Cummings' office saw a chance to open fire for big money, and sold the idea to his chief.

The Glidden case involves only a little more than two million dollars. But it won't it will pave the way for collecting millions from other companies. Biggest bill would be paid by U. S. Industrial Alcohol Company $8,140,000.

Though the total is twenty millions, Justice Department lawyers privately admit they will be jubilant if they collect half of it.

Contract Bridge

By E. V. SHEPARD.

MASTERSHIP BRIDGE (29). TO PROBABLY do well, and to enable partner to know what he requires to take-out a no-trump into his best suit, the opening no-trump bidder should have at least three reasonably well guarded suits, containing not less than two and one-half quick tricks and a total of at least five probable tricks.

To shift a sound 1-No Trump into a suit, with expectations of doing well, the one taking out should hold an absolute minimum of four probable tricks, including one quick trick and be able to win at least three trump tricks, presuming that the no-trump bidder holds at least three trumps and that the remaining three trumps are held 3-2.

A hand no stronger than the foregoing cannot expect to go game unless partner strongly supports the suit call. A four-trick hand has no rebid, but a five-trick hand may rebid once. If partner bids 2-No Trumps over the first showing of the suit, his holder may bid 3 of the suit. If the no-trump bidder at once bids 3 of partner's suit, its holder may bid 4.

The following holdings are worth an overall of partner's 1-No Trump, but whether he bids 2-No Trumps or makes a minimum assist of the suit call, the holding is not worth a rebid:

A-10-7-6-2, with not less than a side K.
K-Q-7-6-2, with not less than a side K.
K-Q-3-6-2, with not less than a side K.
A-Q-7-6-2, even without side strength.
K-Q-3-10-2, even without side strength.
A-9-6-1-3-2, even without side strength.

Add a single probable side trick to any one of the above holdings and the hand is worth a single rebid. Add two probable side tricks, instead of one, and each of the above holdings is worth two rebids.

A six-trick hand, with ability to win four or five trump tricks, had better take out with a three-bid, instead of a two-bid, to disclose game expectations at once. Probably the no-trump bidder will bid 2-50 Trumps over an attempted take-out of 2-odd. Unless you can jump to game in the suit he may bid 3-No Trumps, over a second minimum suit rebid. Usually his reason is to insure the opening lead coming up to his hand instead of going through it.

A solid minor suit, unless able to go game, justifies jumping partner's 1-No Trump to 3-No Trumps.

CROWD TO DIMINISH
Ohio State university's football game against Drake Saturday will not draw near so many fans as did that against Kentucky last week—Drake will not bring the several thousand Kentucky brought along; Drake does not strike a popular fancy as did Kentucky, and neither will the high school students of the state be the guests of the university for a two-bit admission. *

MAY USE SOPHS
Reports are going the rounds in the capital city that Coach Francis Schmidt may use an entirely underground '11 to start against the invaders. In the backfield would be Wysalik at quarter, Williams and Nardi at the halves, and McDonald at fullback—Not even Capt. Gomer Jones would be in the lineup, according to the dopesters. *

DETROIT ENTHUSIASM
The picture printed on Page 1 of Tuesday's Herald depicted enthusiasm in the nth degree—it showed Goose Goslin, veteran outfielder, being mauled by Manager Mike Coghane and Pitcher Tommy Bridges after driving in the winning run in the last game of the world series—Both maulers had quite a lot to do with the result. *

GRIMM TO SEEK THREE NEW MEN

CHICAGO, Oct. 9—All that was left of the 1935 Chicago Cubs today was a stack of forwarding addresses.

Before scattering over the country for the winter they were careful to visit the business office, leave instructions for the forwarding of their world's series loser's checks—$4,554.00 per man.

Manager Charley Grimm lost no time in breaking for his farm near St. Louis. But he'll be back soon, he said, to talk over next year's plans with Owner P. K. Wrigley. He intimated several members of the Cubs will be on the trading block.

Grimm intimated he would shop around for another pitcher, a catcher and an outfielder. But he was silent as to the bait he would offer.

"I'll be busy at the winter sessions," he said, "and may have some news for the fans before then. I know what I need and that's what I'm going after."

DRAKE HOPES TO SCARE BIG OSU GRID 11

Bulldogs Have Two Victories for Season; Ubl is Triple-Threat Back

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 9—Swinging along up football's comeback trail, Drake university's football forces this week head eastward, where Saturday they run up against Ohio State's battering Buckeyes in one of the nation's leading football encounters.

With two victories under their belts, the Bulldogs are going a long way in fulfilling pre-season expectations of Drake's football fans. From end to end and from leadback to tailback, the wearers of the White and Blue look as if they are headed for a big year.

At the ends where Big Lester Sandstrom and Jumping Jack Parish are stationed, there need be no worry for the Drake followers. Sandstrom, a 6'2" giant, has acquired the art of nabbing passes, especially when they are thrown by My Ubl. Not only does this boy catch passes but he has made good use of the thing they call tackling.

Cole Biggest Man
Leonard Cole, the giant of the team is a rugged, tough, hard working, 208-pound tackle.

Herb Hedlund, a big sophomore tackle, is regarded as one of the most promising players on the squad. Herb is a human dynamo and a power both offensively and defensively in the line.

Wait Miller, guard is called one of the best linemen in the history of the school. In on every play and usually on the bottom, Miller has a great knack at diagnosing the opponents' plays.

Tommy McLaughlin, who pairs with Miller at the other guard, has a world of fight and is always in there busting up interference. At center is Bill Pettit, a smart and aggressive player. On top of every play, Bill is a standout in the line.

Ubl Triple-Threat
My Ubl, who is usually stationed at fullback, is a triple-threat back who really knows the game. Ubl is one of the country's best kickers and passers.

At left halfback is Chuck Orebaugh, a snakey hipped speed demon. Chuck is also a triple-threat back, does most of the ball toting and has a chance to become one of the greatest backs that ever played at Drake.

Joe Auer, sophomore halfback, is the hardest running back on the team. He is a dangerous back at all times. Joe can block with the best of them and clears the way for his team-mates.

Bill Fulton, who usually starts at the other backfield post, is the unsung hero of the team. Bill is the boy that does the blocking and more than his share of the tackling. A hard blocker, he is used constantly in that department. When Bill is out, in comes Al Perry, a deadly blocker, who is bound to see a lot of action during the season.

PICKAWAY BOARD BUYS LAND FOR FIELD DAY SCENE

With the annual county track and field meet scheduled for Pickaway-twp next spring, the board of education of that school has started activities which will provide the institution a splendid athletic field on which the contests will be staged.

Announcement was made Wednesday of the purchase of 8.86 acres of land directly south of the school building from Mrs. N. T. Ruggles, S. Court-st., for $2,658.

A truck and a baseball field will be constructed and other parts of the property will be landscaped.

The annual field meet usually attracts several hundred persons and the Pickaway-twp board wants to put its best foot forward as the host.

BOBCATS TO MEET TOM YARR'S TEAM

ATHENS, Oct. 9—Ohio university, geared in victory stride, will get back in the thick of the gridiron wars this Friday when they meet Tommy Yarr's John Carroll eleven at the Cleveland Municipal Stadium.

Idle last week-end, after their victory over the strong University of Illinois team the previous week, the Bobcats, starting Friday, will go through the remainder of their eight game schedule without another pause.

Much of the Ohio defense this Friday will rest on the robust toes of Bob Snyder and Bill Jurkovic, punters. It was these two Bobcats who booted Zupke's eleven back deep in their own territory and kept them from launching their vaunted passing attack until the Illinois took desperate measures and began tossing them in the last quarter. In that game, Snyder and Jurkovic averaged 47 yards per kick with the opponents averaging their runbacks at two and a half yards.

Art Lewis, Ohio's fast 200-pound tackle and possibly the greatest Bobcat tackle in football history, will be another bulwark on defense. Lewis has the knack of taking care of both his own side of the line and of the opposite.

Ubl Triple-Threat
My Ubl, who is usually stationed at fullback, is a triple-threat back who really knows the game. Ubl is one of the country's best kickers and passers.

SINGLE WING IS GRID FUNDAMENTAL

Former Notre Dame Quarterback Explains Sequence of Off-Tackle Smash, End Run

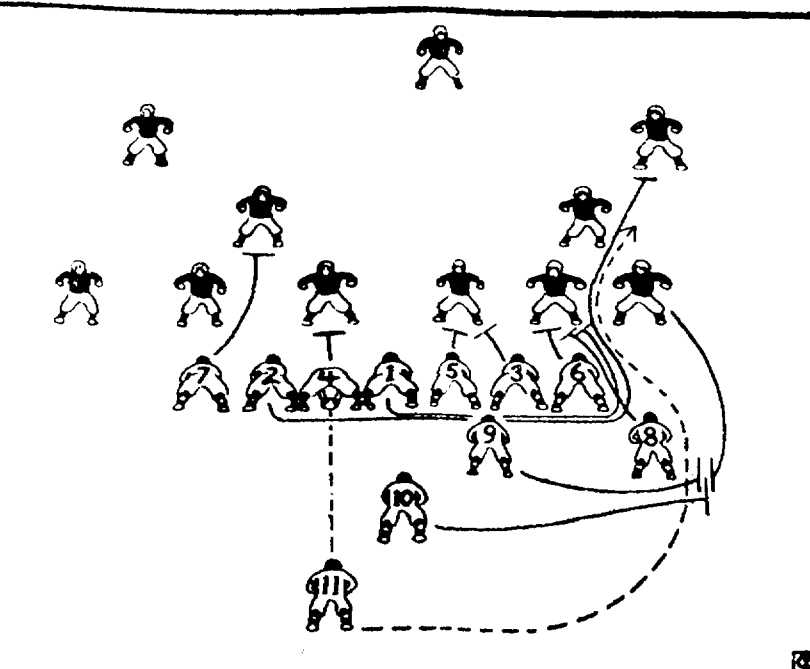

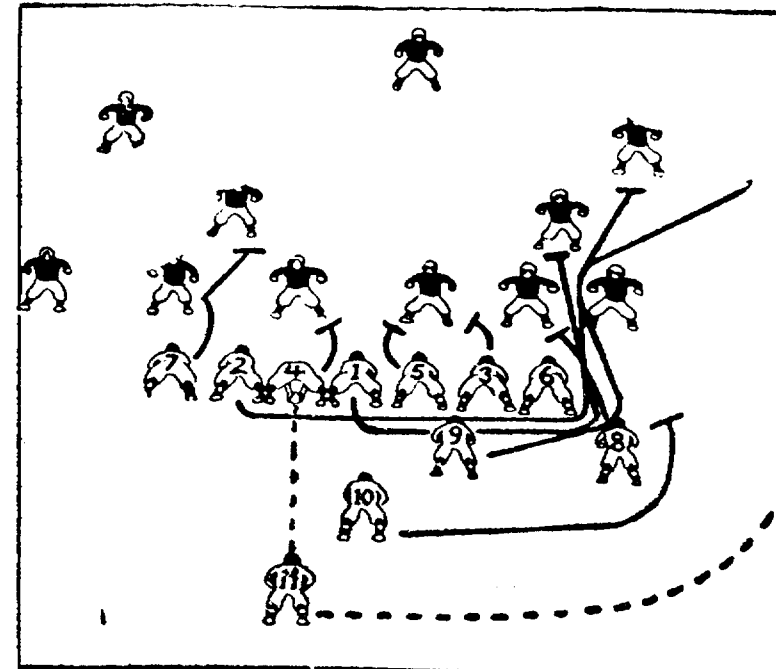

Diagram shows off-tackle play

End run outlined

By HARRY STUHLREHER
Coach Villanova college

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 9— Besides giving individual advice to boys, building their confidence, checking their academic standing, arranging schedules and trips, and a few other details, a football coach is expected to build a football offense that wins games.

Probably the most universally used offense in high school and college is the Warner single wing-back. In discussing it, it must be remembered that an offense must be adjusted to the material at hand. One hears of many unsuccessful coaches who adhere to a definite offense and try to make the players fit it. The coach with the best record is the one who adapts his type of play to the material. Fundamental theories on offense will not have to be changed, but plays must be varied so the boys on the squad can operate them to better advantage.

Qualifications of Players
Speed, deception and power are the necessary qualifications in any offense. You will concentrate more on power if you have big, strongly built boys, and more on speed if you have fast steppers. The deception angle incorporates itself with the other two.

Since we are to take the single wing offense, I wish to show what type of men are required for the respective positions, numbered in accompanying diagrams. No. 1, lineman, the key man on the line, is the best running guard. He has to lead on all interference both ways. In other words, he is backfield man on the line. No. 2 and No. 3 are the second best interfering linemen. No. 2 helps to lead the interference to the right while No. 3 will head plays coming to the left on the short side.

No. 4, center, has big responsibility in getting plays away with accurate passing and at the same time carrying out his blocking assignment. No. 5 is called the stand-pat tackle. He ordinarily is neither fast nor nifty enough to lead interference. He stays put in the line and blocks straight away.

No. 3 is the best blocking end and therefore is placed at the strong point of the attack while No. 7 is installed on the short side for even though he may be a good pass receiver or a good blocker in the secondary, he is not as accomplished in straight away blocking.

In the backfield the respective positions call for these duties: No. 8 has to be a good blocker as well as a pretty good runner in order to carry the ball on reverses; plays to the left. No. 9 is the blocking back. He is the heavy duty player to the backfield as No. 1 is to the line. This player seldom carries the ball.

No. 10 is the line plunger and ball handler. In this latter assignment, he starts off most all spinner plays and reverses by receiving the ball from center and then handing it to either No. 11 or No. 8. This position calls for an extremely steady player. The triple-threat artist is No. 11, the tail back. He must be a good runner, passer and blocker. The better he is in all these departments, the more success the team will have.

The first, strongest and best in football is the off-tackle. We then build our offense from there. In diagramming these plays, the second will evolve from the first. They all have to start alike, and look the same until they actually hit the spot designated.

On the off-tackle play as shown in the diagram at left, it is necessary to double up on your blocking at the point where the play is going. Hence, we assign No. 6 and No. 8 to the tackle. The latter is the important blocker as he has to take the defensive tackle in. No. 5 and No. 3 block in the defensive left guard. No. 1 leads in interference through play hole and blocks defensive fullback. No. 4 follows No. 1 in interference and takes defensive left half while No. 7 brushes tackle and gets defensive center backing up the line. Backfield men, No. 9 and No. 10, team up to block out defensive parallel to line of scrimmage to let interference form and then cuts at right angle up through the off-tackle hole.

The off-tackle hole.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 9—The blocking posts and tackling dummies near Ohio stadium today were reinforced after Coach Francis Schmidt of Ohio State sent the Buckeyes through the lengthy blocking and tackling drill he promised them following the Kentucky game.

After completing the drill in these departments, the Bucks engaged in a dummy scrimmage against a freshman team.

A few changes in the Ohio starting lineup is certain to be in vogue when the Bucks meet Drake here Saturday. Jumping Joe Williams, Barborton player who stole the Kentucky show, might start at left halfback in place of the veteran Dick Heckin.

Charley Ream, huge sophomore tackle, will probably be at left tackle in place of Charley Hamrick, 245-pound regular, who has been watching practice from the sidelines because of an injured knee. Schmidt wasn't too pleased with Hamrick's work in the opener.

RIKIE GIANTS FOR COLLINS

Acts Terry for Schumacher and Hubbell, or Himself; Fears Cubs Next Year

NEW YORK, Oct. 9—Far from being permanently affected by the disquieting, almost incredible manner in which they played some of those losing games in the world series, the Chicago Cubs will be harder than ever to beat now, in the opinion of Branch Rickey, the headman of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Outside was madness. The windows rattled and roared with the violence of a city that was celebrating Detroit's first world's championship but, unheeding, Rickey's voice went quietly on to say that the Tigers could and possibly would repeat if the American league, but that the going would be tougher, much tougher, next time.

Trade Dizzy
As for his own club, he intimated vast and even disconcerting changes, although at the mention of this writer's story about Dizzy Dean being traded to the Chicago Cubs, or elsewhere, he was pleased to smile. Yet only the day before I had learned from other sources that either Dean will go or other must.

The New York Giants, he dismissed almost patronizingly. "We are not figuring much on the Giants next year," he said. "Terry knows that he has to do things with his club but I suspect he doesn't know how many. He talked to us about Rip Collins and I told him he could have Collins for Schumacher and Hubbell. I also told Terry he could have for himself, even up."

The Giants can't have Collins. "The Cubs," Rickey went on, "need only a little more pitching. Outside of that, those kid players will be better for the ticking they took here. Galan swings at anything he can see. He'll get over that. Cavarretta will come on, too, with Hack, Demaree, O'Dea and Bill Lee, the pitcher, showing natural improvement. Yes, it's the Cubs we'll have to beat."

LES PLAN MEETING
OCTOBER 20

District Initiation Scheduled;
Organization Leading in Security Program

Final preparations were made for the large class of candidates to be initiated at an Eagle district initiation to be held here on Sunday, Oct. 20, at a meeting Tuesday evening.

Although the Fraternal Order of Eagles rose from sixth to second place among the fraternal organizations during the past few years, they are making a special effort this year to double their membership in celebration of the signing by President Roosevelt of the Social Security Act on Aug. 14. This fraternity, which has pioneered in Social Justice legislation, has a deep personal interest in this act of which Miss Francis Perkins, Secretary of Labor wrote: "It provides the majority of our people with a substantial measure of security in infancy and childhood, in economic crisis of their working life, and in their old age."

The law puts into effect several humanitarian measures for which the Eagles have fought for a third of a century. At the meeting a summary of the important sections of the act were brought out, and also these facts were again brought to the minds of the members:

In 1921, when the Fraternal Order of Eagles began the fight for Old Age Pensions, not a single state or county in the United States had an Old Age Pension law in force. In Aug. 1935, when the Social Security Act became a law, 34 states had Old Age Pension laws on their statute books, thanks to the continuous campaign which the Eagles carried on.

In 1930, long before unemployment was recognized as a serious problem, the Eagles had worked out a plan to provide "every adult American with a steady job at a saving wage." This plan is embodied in the "Eagles-Ludlow bill" for the Stabilization of Employment, now Bill No. 2 on the House calendar. Significant features of this bill have already been adopted by the Roosevelt Administration. The Eagles are continuing the fight to put an end to all unemployment.

The first Mothers' Pension Law in the United States was drafted and administered by an Eagle, Judge Edward Everett Porterfield, of Kansas City, Mo. Eagles pioneered with him in securing passage of this law. Today 44 states have Mothers' Pension laws.

The pen which was used to sign the Social Security Act was presented to Senator Joseph F. Guffey, of Pennsylvania, who represented the Fraternal Order

Leaf tobacco being sold to highest bidder

From 1900 up to 1934 the leaf tobacco used for cigarettes increased from 13,084,037 lbs. to 326,093,357 lbs.; an increase of 2392%

It takes mild ripe tobacco to make a good cigarette.

During the year ending June 30, 1900, the Government collected from cigarette taxes $3,969,191

For the year ending June 30, 1934, the same taxes were $350,299,442 an increase of 8725%

—a lot of money.

Cigarettes give a lot of pleasure to a lot of people.

More cigarettes are smoked today because more people know about them—they are better advertised.

But the main reason for the increase is that they are made better—made of better tobaccos; then again the tobaccos are blended—a blend of Domestic and Turkish tobaccos.

Chesterfield is made of mild, ripe tobaccos. Everything that science knows about is used in making it a milder and better-tasting cigarette.

We believe you will enjoy them
